Hermes Trismegistus

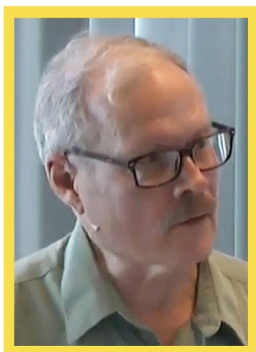

Nurturing Wisdom, Awakening Conscience

Saturday, December 7, 2024

9:00 – 11:00 AM (PST)

Hermes Trismegistus was the center of a profound spiritual movement in the first centuries of the common era, and his teachings deeply influenced early Christians, an influence that continued, in various forms, through Western history and into the present. We will examine the mystery of who Hermes Trismegistus was and his teachings, which address conscience, intuition, and self-determination in individual spiritual growth and in discerning the meaning of human existence.

Elton A. Hall is a retired professor of philosophy and religious studies. His career of 30 years included Moorhead State University, California State University, Oxnard College and Moorpark College.
